

Bear Spot Farm and Foundation's Premier Event, Children of the Americas Dressage Invitational (CADI), Takes a Year Off in 2016

CADI brings together the best young dressage riders from Central, South and North America

December 21, 2015, Concord, MA - Bear Spot announces CADI event will return in 2017.

"We are so proud of this event and what it offers kids from around the globe to experience a true FEI international event. We intend to spend a year researching the overall impact of this event, including format, dressage organization support, agenda and timing. We are looking into an alternative opportunity for 2016", said Jane Karol, Founder and Head Trainer, Bear Spot Farm and Foundation. "With 8 years invested in this event, we are committed to the talented young riders who are the future of dressage."

CADI brings together the best young riders ages 12-14 from Central, South and North America. CADI gives riders a chance to represent their countries in an international event, develop and perform a freestyle and receive coaching from the world's top dressage trainers over a full week of training and competing. CADI is not just a competition - It is also an opportunity for cultural exchange among all participants and their families using their shared love of the horse. 18-24 riders are selected from applicants from over 30 countries. CADI riders coming from more than 600 miles away have the option of riding borrowed horses.
